Meet Kathryn Lilley, Author of the Fat City Mystery Series, at the San Diego Public Library

A Killer Workout continues following the adventures of TV reporter sleuth Kate Gallagher

SAN DIEGO – The San Diego Public Library will host an author talk featuring Kathryn Lilley. She will read from and discuss her new novel, A Killer Workout, the second installment of the Fat City Mystery series, at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, November 12, 2008, in the Wangenheim Room of the Central Library, located at 820 E Street. This event is free and open to the public.

In this follow up to Dying to be Thin, plus-sized TV reporter Kate Gallagher decides to enroll in a boot camp-style fitness program after suffering another setback in her war on fat. When her roommate, Marnie, is found dead near the obstacle wall, the campers suspect foul play; this is not the first suspicious accident at Body Blast. Losing weight is hard, but it shouldn't be mortal combat, so Kate decides to kick her investigative skills into high gear before she becomes a target. A Killer Workout, like its predecessor, is set in Durham, North Carolina, the self-proclaimed "Diet Capital of the World." Copies of Kathryn Lilley's books will be available for purchase at the event.

Kathryn Lilley is a graduate of Wellesley College and former editor-in-chief of the Wellesley News. She received a graduate degree in journalism from the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, interned at stations in Cambridge, MA and South Carolina, and worked as an on-air reporter for WIS-TV in Columbia, South Carolina.
